Subject: Settlement Comments

Dear Sir/Madam:

Any settlement must incorporate a requirement that the 'Windows' operating system be open to and convenient to install other browsers. In fact, because it is such a dominant system, the option to use other companies' competing software products must remain an open and viable alternative.

Microsoft (MS) cannot be allowed to block out competitors by bundling proprietary products in with their operating system. Provision must be made to easily install competing software if a company or final retail user is so inclined.

MS company culture has got to change so that we don't keep coming back to this issue.

Regards,
